Baker says boosting coronavirus testing is vital to reopening economy

Calling expanded COVID-19 testing a vital key component to reopening the Massachusetts economy, Governor Charlie Baker said Thursday that the state hopes to ramp up capacity to 45,000 tests per day by the end of July and 75,000 by the end of the year.

Here's what we know — and don't — about the Mass. reopening plan.

Whistle-Blower Warns Congress, 'We Don't Have a Master Plan'

- Dr. Rick Bright, who was ousted from a top science role after he objected to wide use of a malaria drug promoted by President Trump, testified before the House.
- He warned the outbreak would "get worse and be prolonged" if the U.S. did not swiftly develop a national testing strategy and plan to distribute a vaccine.
- Almost 3 million U.S. workers filed for unemployment last week. Here's the latest.
